

Touro Law Review

Volume 30 | Number 2

Article 5

June 2014

Other Tributes to Fred Bosselman

Edward J. Sullivan

Nancy E. Stroud

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.tourolaw.edu/lawreview>

Part of the Land Use Law Commons, and the Property Law and Real Estate Commons

Recommended Citation

Sullivan, Edward J. and Stroud, Nancy E. (2014) "Other Tributes to Fred Bosselman," Touro Law Review. Vol. 30 : No. 2 , Article 5.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.tourolaw.edu/lawreview/vol30/iss2/5>

This Tributes to Fred Bosselman is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ Touro Law Center. It has been accepted for inclusion in Touro Law Review by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ Touro Law Center. For more information, please contact lross@tourolaw.edu.

OTHER TRIBUTES TO FRED BOSSELMAN

*Edward J. Sullivan

I first met Fred Bosselman in 1973 when I was a young lawyer and spoke at an American Law Institute (ALI) Land Use Seminar on the Fasano case.¹ Fred and Dick Babcock worked together in a firm that specialized in utility and land use law cases and both had a national reputation in land use law. Fred was the reporter for the ALI effort to craft a Model Land Development Code² to supersede the Standard Planning and Zoning Enabling Acts of the 1920s,³ and was responsive to the efforts of Professor Dan Mandelker and myself to give importance to the comprehensive plan in land use regulatory matters, though his vision was not shared by the committee preparing the code. Fred was a leading planning lawyer, but also a scholar, mentor, a lawyer with both skill and judgment, and a mensch.

It is fitting that this issue of the Touro Law Review be dedicated to Fred Bosselman. Fred embodied all to which a planning lawyer should aspire. His creativity, quiet brilliance and (to say it again) judgment, inspired the many who worked with him and indeed all he touched. We take nothing when we leave this world – we leave

* Edward J. Sullivan is an owner in the Portland office of Garvey Schubert Barer, and specializes in planning, administrative, and state and local government law. He also teaches planning law at Northwestern College of Law at Lewis and Clark College and Portland State University and has written numerous law review articles on land use and administrative law. Mr. Sullivan has been the associate editor of, and writer for, the Oregon State Bar's Real Estate and Land Use Law Digest since its inception in 1979 and has taught Planning Law and Administrative Law at the undergraduate, graduate and law school levels since 1972. In addition, he serves as 9th Circuit North Regional Vice-President of the International Municipal Attorneys Association ("IMLA") since 1992 and has served as Chair of the Land Development Planning and Zoning Section. Mr. Sullivan is a member of the American Planning Association Amicus Curiae Committee, has also served as Chair of the American Bar Association Section on State and Local Government Law and currently chairs the Section's Comprehensive Planning Subcommittee.

¹ Fasano v. Bd. of Cnty. Comm'rs of Washington Cnty., 507 P.2d 23 (Or. 1973).

² MODEL LAND DEV. CODE.

³ ADVISORY COMM. ON ZONING, DEP'T OF COMMERCE, A STANDARD STATE ZONING ENABLING ACT (1926), available at <http://landuselaw.wustl.edu/StndZoningEnablingAct1926.pdf> (last visited Mar. 31, 2014).

only what we have done. By his work, his scholarship and his character, Fred Bosselman has left a significant and lasting legacy.

*Nancy E. Stroud

I was very fortunate to have been taken under the wing of Fred Bosselman as a first year lawyer at the Chicago firm of Ross and Hardies, along with several other bright-eyed local government lawyers. Despite his national (and international) reputation among legal and planning professionals, Fred seemed oblivious to how much we held him in awe. Over the subsequent ten years that I practiced law with him, his brilliant and creative thinking challenged me, and his friendship guided me. It was not surprising when he eventually turned to academia, given his prolific writing and scholarship. What I could not figure was out how he accomplished all he did while traveling all the time for both business and pleasure, especially in the times before cell phones and laptops. Fred's professional contributions go far beyond The Taking Issue.¹ He inspired a generation and more to better lawyering, planning, and problem solving.

* Nancy E. Stroud graduated from the University of North Carolina with a law degree and master of regional planning before practicing law with Fred Bosselman. She continues to provide land use planning and law advice, primarily to local governments throughout Florida, in her own firm Lewis Stroud & Deutsch, PL in Boca Raton.

¹ FRED P. BOSSELMAN, DAVID L. CALLIES & JOHN BANTA, COUNCIL ON ENVTL. QUALITY, THE TAKING ISSUE: AN ANALYSIS OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL LIMITS OF LAND USE CONTROL (1973).